Commission Approves $336 Million in School Construction Projects

Today the Ohio Facilities Construction Commission (OFCC) approved more than $154 million in state funding for school construction projects in six Ohio school districts. Combined with $181 million in local funding, these projects represent more than $336 million in public construction work.

“OFCC is excited to partner with these districts to build high-quality, flexible learning environments that support their community’s vision for educational success,” said OFCC Executive Director Cheryl J. Lyman.

School districts with projects approved today are participating in OFCC’s Classroom Facilities Assistance Program (CFAP). Funding awards are contingent upon State Controlling Board approval. All six school districts have raised their local share for these projects.

Kimberly Murnieks, Director of the Ohio Office of Budget and Management and Commission Chair also shared the importance of these projects to the state of Ohio. “Public construction projects create thousands of jobs in the Buckeye State, including opportunities for architects, engineers, contractors, and material suppliers. Work on these school projects will help strengthen the state’s economy while supporting educational excellence.”
